Ordinance unclear in veteran's care case

BY LIZ HAAS

The interpretation of a city zoning ordinance defining residential use was discussed at length at Tuesday night's meeting of the Bay St. Louis

Chantilly Terrace resident James McCarthy had previously petitioned the council against the location of a residential care home for veterans owned by Linda Peterson at #31 Chantilly

Bay St. Louis City Attorney John Scafide interpreted the residential ordinance as defining family as "one or more persons occupying a dwelling and living as a single housekeeping unit."

Peterson arranged a contractural agreement with the Veterans Association where three veterans of war pay her to live and be cared at her

According to Scafide, the home would retain its residential/commercial character so long as three or less veterans are housed there.

McCarthy said, "Mr. Scafide left out a main requirement, that the activity must be restricted to one room and these people are using more than Scafide said, "That is a requirement for a nursing or convalescent home. I said the subject use is analogous to a home occupation, which is permitted use in a residential zone.

Members of the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission disagreed with Scafide's decision and interpreted the ordinance in a different manner.

Present to speak on the matter were Mr. and Mrs. Max Elrod, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bragg, Mr. and Mrs. McLain, and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Ladner. Each couple is willing to pay for the installation, and cost of culverts for their property except the Elrods.

According to Mayor Edward Favre, Woody Stieffel, the city engineer, said the 15-inch The council tabled the matter culverts and catch basins would cost approximately $500 and $100, respectively, for installa-

Council member John Wilkerson said the only problem he saw with the culverts is the city's bad reputation for cleaning ditches and worse reputation for cleaning culverts.

Councilman James Thriffilev said, "Any time you put culverts in one place, it causes problems for someone else in another Farve said, "We needed a solution and I felt the best way was with culverts.

Thriffiley requested for the mayor to get a detailed report from the engineer on the cost estimate for materials and man hours and a detailed explanation of pre-culvert and postculvert results. The mayor said he would follow Thriffiley's request and also notify the resihe found out.

Travnicek appointed county health officer

BY TRACI BONNEY

Ronald Cuevas, chairman of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, announced at the board's June 15 meeting that Dr. Robert Travnicek has been appointed as Hancock County health officer.

Travnicek, appointed by the Mississippi State Department of Health, served several years as a physician with the United States Public Health Service and ran a family medical practice in Wilber, Neb. He also served as a diplomat with the American Board of Family

Practices. He received his doctorate degree in medicine from the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, and a master's degree in public health from the Harvard School of Public Travnicek is replacing Dr. Robert Hotchkiss, who moved to Jackson, according to a local spokesperson for the State Department of Health.

In other business, Cuevas informed the board that the county recently received a permit for a municipal landfill. Other matters addressed included: -passing a resolution to allow the county jail to operate a canteen for inmates;

—appointing James Odom as chief deputy medical examiner;

-passing a motion to adver-tise on bids to sell a mortuary refrigerator;

and accepting a petition to declare White Cypress Lakes a bird and game sanctuary.

Living Will offers death with dignity

No doubt you have heard the old saying: "Two things are certain, death and taxes.

That cliche is worth repeating. I don't know who said it first, but it sounds like a remark

Mark Twain might have made. At any rate, it would be prudent for us to save throughout the year in order to pay the taxes and to make some decisions before death.

The Mississippi State Department of Health has a helpful pamphlet called "Procedures for Filing a 'Living Will'." The pamphlet is free for the asking and it explains how one can authorize withdrawal of life sustaining mechanisms—that is cessation of the use of extraordinary techniques and/or mechanical devices which prolong life through artificial

It is really a very simple and direct approach, well thought out. The declaration reads: "I, (declarant) being of sound mind, declare that if at any time I should suffer a terminal physical condition which causes me severe distress or unconsciousness and my physician, with the concurrence of two other physicians, believes that there is no expectation of my regaining consciousness or a state of health that is meaningful to me but for the use of life sustaining mechanisms my death would be imminent. I desire that the mechanisms be withdrawn so applications-including that I may die naturally."

The application calls for two witnesses, a social security number and the assurance that should you wish to cancer the Living Will at any time, you may do so.

There is a $10 fee to cover administrative costs. There is no charge for revocation.

I was just thinking, with the high costs of hospital care it might seem fitting and proper to file for a Living Will. It took me longer than it should have to get information and/or an application.

The persons who answered my questions at the hancock County Medical Center, the Chamber of Commerce, etc. were not familiar with the pamphlet.

Filing a Living Will is a serious matter. You may obtain one from Division of Public Health Statistics, P.O. Box 1700, Jackson, MS 39215.

A copy of the pamphlet which gives full instructions is available at the local Hancock County Health Department.

Any person, 18 or older and mentally competent, who lives within the borders of Mississippi, shall be entitled to file a declaration.

The 1984 session of the Mississippi Legislature passed, and Governor Bill Allain signed into law, a bill that gives Mississippi residents the opportunity to make a Living Will.

The Living Will law provides a legal method for any person to express and record his or her wish for the withdrawal of life-into a puddle on the sidewalk or crawl under a tree and go to sleep. Either way, I don't seem to be able to accomplish a whole lot. Maybe Congress should pass a law against working on hot days - or at least a law against going outdoors on hot days.

I don't know, though; that means the police would have to break the law to arrest a lawbreaker. After all, how could they arrest someone for going outdoors unless they went outdoors?

Think about it: if you went outdoors, the best way to avoid arrest would be to stay outdoors all day, or to leave the area where the police were, then go

Maybe just the law against working on a hot day would be

But I'm not sure about that one either. Some folks, odd as this may sound, actually like working on hot days. So, why arrest someone for doing something he likes, when it isn't hurting anyone else?

I know; how about a law against requiring someone to work on a hot day?

Nah, that won't work either, After all, a boss could claim he didn't actually require it. He could say he only commented that an abrupt disappearance of salary would plague those who didn't work.

Wait. I think I just discovered the solution to the problem. It isn't the heat that bugs me, it's the sunlight.

You think I'm kidding, right?

I just put my sunglasses on, even though I'm inside the Echo building, and immediately felt more energetic.

For those of you who don't know me, I have blue-grey eyes that tend more toward the grey. That means my eyes are very sensitive to sunlight. When it gets too bright, I want to close them and sleep.

This gets dangerous, especially when I'm driving, so I keep a pair of the $10 version of the Blueblocker (or Ambervision) glasses with me at all

It's pretty well known that your eyes' natural defense against glare is to squint. Well, squinting leads to blinking, which leads to dozing—at least in my case—which leads to sleeping.

So, now we have the solution. All we need to do is make these sunglasses available to everyone who might need them, and we eliminate — or at least reduce — the problem of lethargy on sunny days.

If only they worked for rainy

Commissioner David Reynolds, in a letter to other board members, said the activity at #31 Chantilly Terrace fit the definition for a nursing, convalescent home, which is not pro-vided for in a R-2 Zone; it should be in a R-5 District. ### "QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

We are receiving many good comments from readers of the Echo on our "Archives" appearing in each issue and also on the old photos.

It really has been an education for me in doing the Archives column, as I am finding out about many interesting facts about the area.

The old photo of a class at the St. Stanislaus Back School, better known as "Rip University," really brought about a lot of comments. I knew a lot of the folks who were in that photo.

That particular photo was taken a year before I started at the school which was located on Bookter

We want to use as many photos as we can of people and of events that happened in the area 25 years or more ago. Photos will be returned to the owners.

I have been on the lookout for an old photo taken of the railroad "coal shute" in Bay St. Louis. It was a huge affair at the depot, and I can remember all of the activity in the area when I was a youngster.

If you have an old photo, stop by the office, as we may be able to use it and show some of the younger folks how it was a few years ago in the area.

I do want to really thank those who have thus far provided us with old photos.

Many local fishermen are getting their gear ready for the annual Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo scheduled for July 3 through 8.

Russell Elliott of Bay St. Louis is president of the rodeo organization which is officially the rodeo of the state of Mississippi.

This will be the 42nd year for the rodeo which is open to both fresh and saltwater fishermen. There is no registration fee. Fishermen just have to register prior to Registration forms are now available at most sporting goods stores and at the rodeo headquarters, Rice Pavilion, Gulfport.

Bill Whitfield, who is also of Bay St. Louis, is the 1990 honorary president of the event.

Every year the rodeo is dedicated to a special group or organizations. This year the rodeo is dedicated to the Naval Home in Biloxi, Elliott reports.

The rodeo has 17 princesses vying for the title of queen, including local beauties Christy Breland representing Hancock County; Natalie Noonan, Bay St. Louis; Melissa Harvill, Waveland; and Theresa Rosenhauer, Diamondhead. I wish the local girls best of luck in the competition.

The rodeo is a family affair. There will be various booths and entertainment every night as well as carnival rides and a big-fish display.

There are all types of prizes for the biggest fish in 27 categories from fishing tackle, motors, ice chests and coming.

I wish all fishermen luck in the rodeo.

And, that means the cost of business is going up.
The Federal Environmental Protection Agency has announced that it is significantly expanding its rules and regulations, now reaching into businesses and organizations which never have been considered as threats to the environment.

The state's Bureau of Pollution Control has identified some 1,000 generators of hazardous waste materials in Mississippi, and these firms largely operate safely and within the reasonNow the number of firms subjected to environmental rules and regulations will be expanded. What does this mean to the consumer?

Among other things, it means increased costs of goods and services since the additional environmental costs must be passed on from business to the consumer.

Most Mississippians support environmental protections, but most Mississippians also support a reasonable, balanced approach to government

Ed Cole observer of Bulgaria elections

For an ex-farm boy from Jefferson County, Mississippi, Ed Cole found himself in the high cotton of global politics a week or so ago.

Cole, the state chairman of the Mississippi Democratic Party and the only black Democratic chairman in the United States, was picked as one of 10 Americans in a 60-member international delegation to observe the June 10 elections in Bulgaria.

It was the first time since the Communists took power after World War II that free, multiparty elections have taken place in that Eastern European nation on the Black Sea.

The elections were a test of strength of the Bulgarian Socialist Party, formerly the Bulgarian Communist Party, against a strong opposition movement which has arisen out of a democratic coalition of 16 political parties and organizations.

The coalition, calling itself the Union of Democratic Forces, was able to pull 36 percent of the 6.5 million votes cast in the elections, forcing the Socialists to settle for 47.3 percent.

I considered the fact that the Socialists got less than 50 percent of the vote as a major defeat for them, since they control all the financial resources and have a still-entrenched party apparatus," said Cole on his arrival back in Mississippi.

Watching the UDF-the democratic coalition—battle against the odds to put together a campaign in a nation where the democratic tradition is so limited reminded Cole of the struggle by Mississippi blacks for political voice in the 1960s.

"Ît was kinda deja vu," said the 44-year-old Cole. "You just get the right to vote, and you don't know the laws, and you don't know what is going to happen if you do win.

Like blacks in the 60s, the UDF was very disappointed that they didn't do better in their first outing, Cole said, and they immediately blamed elec-tion irregularities for affecting the outcome.

"We (the international delegation) felt very sympathetic towards the UDF but we couldn't say from our observa-tions on election day that the elections were unfair," he said. While many in the delegation arrived in Bulgaria skeptical that a meaningful election could take place, Cole said, "I don't know of an American election that was conducted more open and even-handed as this

One complaint heard from the UDF, he said, was that the Socialist mayor in one province had gone out and picked up voters in his automobile and drive them to the polls. "That's just plain old politicking where I come from," said Cole.

The observer delegation admitted that given Bulgaria's legacy of 45 years of totalitarian rule, it was difficult to detect the subtle intimidation that may have existed since most voters were casting a secret bal-lot for the first time in their

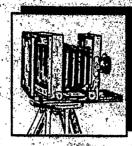

Cole believes that because the Socialists were quite aware that the elections were being subjected to international scrutiny and because of their present goals of doing business with the West, they were extremely careful to avoid any appearance of voter intimidation.

The government did attempt to prohibit release of a parallel count-projections similar to exit polls-of vote tabulations until the final returns were released, but it relented on election day to permit independent observers to conduct parallel voter tabulations.

The Mississippi political figure went to 12 voting precincts (called sections)—eight of them in villages and four in urban areas-to observe the voting process.

"When we arrived at the first precinct at 5:45 a.m. (the polls didn't open until 6 a.m.) there were already 150 of the 202 voters in the precinct in line waiting to vote," he sid. Every voter is issued an envelope, in which he places the color ballot that represents the party of his choice.

"I was difficult for me to understand that the candidates were not important...it was strictly a party vote," Cole said. But are the Bulgarians ready for democracy? The people out-side of the government, Cole says, "are extremely ready,,, and I think the people in the government understand if they don't change, the masses will force the changes."

Landry named youth court administrator

Judge Michael D. Haas announced Yvonne Landry of the Hancock County Youth Court has been assigned court administrator for the Hancock County Youth Court.

She will function as chief administrative officer in charge of adminstrative repsonsibilities in addition to her duties as school attendance counselor and intake officer for school attendance, educational neglect and related matters for the Bay St. Louis School System.

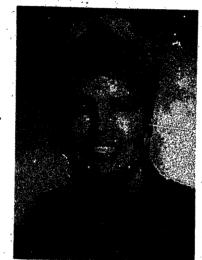

Haas stated, "I am pleased

Ms. Landry accepted these additional duties to help alleviate the increased administrative burdens on the court, created particularly by the adminstration of school atten-dance and related matters throughout the county." Landry has been employed with the court since August of last year and has been responsible not only for schools in the Bay St. Louis system, but assumed additional burdens of delinquency and children in need of supervision cases in the absence of a counselor in this area for several months.

Landry holds a bachelor of science degree in criminal justice from St. Mary's Dominican College in New Orleans with a minor in psychology. She previously was community relations education and liaison officer with the Jefferson Parish Sheriff's Department.

She came to the court from the Mississippi Alcohol Safety Education Program, MASEP, where she traveled the entire state presenting programs, YVONNE LANDRY training and working closely with the court systems.

Husband of hit-and-run victim offers reward for information

BY TRACI BONNEY

Frank McGovern, husband of hit-and-run victim Kay McGovern, is offering a $1,000 reward for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who struck his wife.

Hancock County Sheriff's Department personnel continue to investigate the May hit-and-run on Lakeshore Road.

According to Investigator Matt Karl, Kay B. McGovern, 30, of Lakeshore was struck while jogging by a car with a white top and brown body, driven by a white male.

Karl said the investigation started when Deputy Billy Pepperman responded to a call at about 2 p.m. May 10 from Hancock Medical Center personnel, who said a woman had been brought into the center and left

Frank McGovern said his wife is "doing great" and making progress in recovering use of her right leg, which was broken in several places.

Also injured, he added, was her pelvis, which was cracked in three places.

"She's using the crutches real well right now, but she still needs some help getting around," he said. "She probably won't be able to walk on her own 'until around Christmas'."

McGovern said his wife is handling the situation well, but still has occasional nightmares more than a month after the incident.

Anyone with information HERE WE GROW AGAIN! concerning the hit-and-run should contact Karl at nation's dirtiest cities like New York, Baltimore and Los Angeles.

One significant result of the legislation will be the complete phaseout ozone-depleting chlorofluorocarbons (CFSs) by the end of the decade—a step that makes the U.S. a better neighbor in the world community.

The bill strengthens protection of the air in our national parks, one of this country's greatest treasures. It provides for "reformulated gasoline," or gas containing additives to fuel cars by 1994.

Most importantly the Housepassed version of the bill takes into account the costs of cleaning up the air. The bill provides a $250 million package of relief measures for workers who lose their jobs from industry's efforts to reduce emissions.

Bitter political enemies placed political differences aside to easily enact the Clean Air legislation, after only 12 hours of debate in the House. "The president led, the public wanted it and the House responded," said Rep. John Dingell, Energy and Commerce Committee chairman avalant Committee chairman, explaining why the legislation was so quickly approved.

Hopefully, House and Senate conference committees will approve the final version of the important legislation with the same degree of cooperation and compromise.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

When the early settlers came to the Mississippi Gulf Coast so many years ago, they found the Indians of the area already enjoying to the fullest the sea-food delights of this gastronomic paradise, especially the flounder, along with oysters and shrimp and crabs.

The Indian tribes, who fished the waters with their spears and arrows, taught the settlers the fine art of "floundering" or fishing for flounders; and floundering, all these years and years later, is still a great sport along the Coast, as well as a tasty boon to the dinner table in these so-inflationary times!

When cooking whole flounder, I leave the tail on and score the skin, sprinkling salt and pepper into the slits as well as over the fish. I cover the flounder with slices of lemon, thinner-than-thin, splash melted butter over, and broil barely a few minutes or more, depending upon the size.

Chief rule in cooking flounuer, as with any other fish, is to avoid over-cooking, which destroys the texture. A favorite

BAKED FLOUNDER WITH CRAB STUFFING

Four flounders

- 1/2 stick butter or margarine Lemon slices
- 1 cup crabmeat 1 cup bread crumbs
- egg, beaten
- 2 garlic toes, minced
- 1 onion, chopped

2 Tblsp. chopped celery, same

Dashes of pepper, salt, thyme and parsley to your taste, probably less than a teaspoon each 2 Tblsp. oil

Heat the oil, and saute the seasonings over a moderate heat. Stir in the egg and crumbs and crabmeat, mixing all together. Meanwhile, slit a "pocket" in the flounders, into which you spoon the crabmeat

Melt the half stick of butter in your baking pan, lay the fish atop the butter and top with slices of lemon, and bake at 375 degrees, uncovered, until the fish flakes easily with a fork. (Four servings.)

In place of crabmeat, I sometimes use shrimp, or a combination of chopped shrimp and chopped cucumber, for a change of pace and taste.

(Copyright, 1990, Katharine D. M. Caire)

P.S. At times I prefer to broil the flounder, instead of baking it. I saute the seasonings and "stuffing" ingredients in the melted butter, place in the slits or "pocket" and place the fish in a pan with just enough water to cover the bottom. Arrange three or four inches from heat and broil until it flakes easily with a fork, basting often with the liquid in the pan.

Oil companies meet at Stennis for annual research symposium

Eight of the nation's largest oil companies are meeting at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center for, a two-day symposium concluding today.

For the past two years, Texas A&M and NASA have been conducting rock physics research that could increase the potential for extracting petroleum and natural gas from the earth. The participating companies are Union Oil, Amoco, Exxon, Chevron, Texaco, Conoco, Marathon and Arco.

According to Dr. Doug Rickman, a geologist in Stennis' Science and Technology Laboratory and adjunct professor for Texas A&M, extracting oil is probably one of the most difficult of engineering projects. Crude oil is found in rock anywhere from 500 feet to 20,000 feet below the earth's surface. By understanding the properties or physics of the rock, petroleum engineers could increase their success rates in recovering the oil.

Since 1988, some of these companies, as members of a consortium, have given $20,000 annually to Texas A&M to study the geophysics of rock.

NASA was called upon to assist Texas A&M because of Stennis' image processing expertise used in space remote sensing. This involves the use of computers to process the images of paper-thin sections of rock to extract the pertinent information needed to assist petroleum engineers in pump-

"What we're trying to do is provide better tools to petroleum engineers who have the job of getting the oil out of the ground. Most of the oil in the earth is extremely difficult to get out," Rickman said. "Oil companies have enough foresight that they are willing to invest in this research with the hopes that it will pay off."

If this research can increase the petroleum industry's ability to extract oil by even one percent, it's very much worth it. Rickman said.

In addition to the oil companies, representatives from the Technology Utilization Office at NASA Headquarters and Stennis Space Center are also attending the symposium to determine if the research

"We will tutor the students, help them obtain part-time jobs, make sure they graduate, help them obtain a job after they graduate and follow through with them for eight months after graduation."

The program has an 80 percent success rate across the nation, he added.

The program, modeled on one called Jobs for America's Graduates, is designed to work in conjunction with Mabus' BEST proposal.

Local players advance to Southern Junior Championships

Several talented Bay St. Louis tennis players did extremely well in the Pepsi Junior Qualifying Tennis Tour-nament held June 11-15 in Jackson at the Parham Bridges Tennis Center.

Four players advanced to the Southern Junior Champion-ships including Kristy Heitzmann and Myron Labat Jr., who will play in Atlanta, Ga. June 24-30; Caroline Weems, who will travel to Columbia, S. C. June 22; and Lindy Heitzmann, who will play in Macon, Ga. June 24-30.

Kristy Heitzmann placed third overall out of 35 girls from around the state, and is ranked 11th in the state in the Girls 16 division.

Labat won his first two matches in the Boys 16 division before losing his third round match, and advanced to the quarterfinals of the consolation draw.

Lindy Heitzmann will also participate in the Girls 14 division, as she won her first two rounds before suffering her first defeat. She then won her next two rounds in the consolation

Caroline Weems of Pass Christian qualified for the Girls 12 Southern team by olacing seventh in a field of 32 participants. Weems reached the quarterfinals before losing to the top seed, Mary Brewer, of Summit, Weems teamed with Rebecca Jeffcoat to win first place in doubles competition.

Two other local players. Megan Uram and Julie Heitzmann participated in the tournament. Uram lost to No. 1 Girls 16 seed Rebecca Case, 6-1, 6-0 and came back to defeat Kate Schaffazick, 6-2, 6-0. She bested Lee Knight, 6-1, 6-2, before falling to Jenny Dean in the third set.

Heitzmann was defeated by Mita Poole 6-2, 6-3 and by Shel-bi Tribble, 6-4, 6-2.

In Kristy Heitzmann's first round, she defeated Kim Vaughn from Columbus, 6-2, 6-0, and in the second round beat Cissy Collier from Meridian who the tournament's third-seeded player, 6-3, 6-1.

She continued her winning ways in quarterfinal action by easily handling sixth-seeded Tori Armour from South Haven

Sears takes lead in Waveland Little League

Leading the Waveland Little League 9- and 10-year-old division this week is Sears, with three wins over two teams, One Hour Photo and Jack's Restaurant. Sears, coached by Lonnie Clayborn, defeated One Hour Photo twice and Jack's Restaurant once to attain its current first place position.

"The victories came with some fine pitching from Aaron Clayborn and Raymond Ramsey," said Bernard Tusa, president of the Waveland Little League. "The team's hitting attack was led by James Geof-frey, Timmy Pollion, Jason Roche, Ben Carver, Josh Ellis, Kelly Roth, Scott Courrege, Larry Watkins, Jason Mauffray and Eric Stiglet."
The Big E team won a game to remain a close second, despite a loss to Jack's Restaurant Monday.

Tusa said Big E had "some good pitching from Jeremy Fountain and Robbie Hender-son" in the winning good.

son" in its winning game, and Jack's had "good defense and pitching from Charlie Buckley."

Tusa said One Hour Photo lost all three or its games, but they were close ones. They got good pitching from Jerry Felder and hitting from Paul Alexander and Jason McKay." In 7- and 8-year-old T-ball action, Coca Cola took its first loss of the season. Teams scoring wins during the week included McDonald's, Powell,

In the 11- and 12-year-old division, Burger King defeated Bay Tech 9-3 Saturday to stay within striking distance of first place. Pan Am played two games that ended in ties. In the 13-15-year-old division, Goodyear overcame threes consecutive losses with a win over Dairy Queen 11-7. Goodyear's pitcher, Scott Peppermann, did well in his first season start, Tusa said.

Leading batters for Goodyear included Joseph Dobson, Shawn Keemer, Richard Watson and Matthew Tusa, all with three hits each.

Charles H. Johnson Inc. "remains on a hot streak," Tusa said, with four consecutive "Dairy Queen, playing good ball, has lost their last three games," he added, "with all three losses coming in late innings breakdowns.

"Within the whole league these two weeks will be very competitive, since all age groups are still undecided," he concluded.

Yo-yo, set-line fishing regulations explained

A recently enacted change in October. the state's regulations on yo-yo and set-line fishing has caused some confusion among fishermen who use such methods.

Ron Garavelli, chief of fisheries of the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks said the law was changed last year and went into effect in tified with the fisherman's

"It was listed in public notice 2976," he pointed out. "What it actually did was to reduce licensed fishermen to 25 yo-yos, limb lines or set hooks."

Garavelli also says single yoyos or similar devices attached to trees, etc., each must be idenname, complete mailing address or phone number. However, no more than 25 yo-yos attached to a line is considered a device and needs only one identification tag. In this case, the yo-yos must be at least three feet apart and attached to the line in such a way that they can-

Regulations on jugging were changed also, with no more than 25 "free floating fishing devices" per individual allowed. Each jug must be identified and the jugs may not be constructed of glass or metal. On stateline bordering waters, fishermen may fish up to 100 jugs on a valid commercial fishing license.

Hunting, fishing licenses expire June 30

Surprise—your hunting and hishing licenses expire June 30. and it's best not to wait until the last minute to get your new licenses, says the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

New hunting and fishing licenses were shipped to license agents across the state beginning June 15, said Carolyn Briscoe, business manager.

"We plan to have new hunt-ing and fishing licenses available to the public through license agents across the state prior to the June 30 expiration date. However, the new licenses will not be valid until July 1," Briscoe said.

Sportsman License renewals will be mailed sometime in

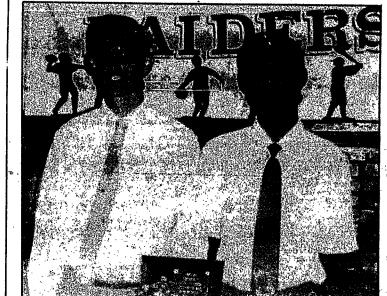

Hunters and fishermen are reminded that before they may purchase new resident licenses. they must produce proof that they are a state resident.

Proof of residency consists of a valid Mississippi driver's license, an identification card issued by the Mississippi Department of Public Safety, or a student identification card issued by a Mississippi college or university.
Residents who do not have

The essessment contains a Finding of No Significant impact, it further predicted both positive and negative impacts. Positive impacts would be improvement of the air and water quality and rieduction of the potential for accidental release of hazardoustroits were associated with socio-economiceffects to the region. These effects may be significant during both the realignment and post-realignment periode. However, plenned fessing of the facility to private interests his the potential to create a positive impact to the area by increasing the tax base.

Controlled burning exercise draws prominent fire investigators to Bay

BY JANET MCQUEEN
While billowing smoke was drifting skyward from a burning structure on St. Francis Street last week, firefighters enrolled in a University of Southern Mississippi class were learning.
The controlled burning was conducted by members of the National Association of Fire Investigators not to teach participants how to fight fires—but how to learn the fire's cause and origin.

According to Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Andrew Lizana, the burning was conducted here because "we had the perfect structure and the owners, the Loiacano family, wanted the house leveled.'

The event drew experts from private forensic investigating firms from across the country. As members of NAFI, they volunteer their time and pay their own expenses to educate others in fire and explosion investigation and analysis.

The local event was sponsored by NAFI, Sigma Associates (Dr. A. J. Scardino) and the Bay St. Louis Fire Department. Members of the Pass Christian Fire Department and Harrison County Sheriff's Department also participated.

Hancock County Sheriff's Department trusties assisted in preparing the structure for the controlled burning, while dimensions of doorways, windows and rooms were carefully recorded by NAFI members.

Bay St. Louis firefighters fought the blaze as part of their training—but the real lessons to be learned remained in the smoldering ashes.
